

Jo Hannah

Jo is originally from Cheshire but has been based in Surrey for 20 years. Jo studied 3D Design Crafts at Richmond College, London, before achieving a Masters degree in Ceramics at the University for the Creative Arts, Farnham, in 2018.

Jo's work is rooted in the power of nature and its healing qualities. Nature's ability to thrive and grow and reclaim manmade structures has been an endless source for Jo's creativity and becomes a metaphor for strength over adversity and our ability to heal.

Jo's latest work was born out of the Covid Pandemic; It is a reflection on Jo's long walks through the woods and her continued fascination with the natural world, particularly Mosses & Lichens; the way nature continues to thrive and create new and continued growth.
